The reason for starting was to give American Indian high school students a chance to visit and experience a university campus, so they may begin envisioning themselves attending. In 2017, just over half of American Indian high school students in Minnesota graduated in four years. Research shows that attending culturally-centered summer camps increases college attendance outcomes for American Indian students. Since then, the camp has	Ongoing

Academic credit is available upon official request. Long-term Fellows are matched according to personal interests, professional development needs, and available projects. Long-term Fellows can expect to fully integrate into one of PEM's many departments with duties comparable to those of full-time team members. Our Long-term Fellowships provide 12-24 months of solid, real-world work experience succeeding as part of PEM's teams, researching and producing world class exhibitions, and providing other programmatic support. Long-term Fellows are full-time employees of PEM and eligible for the museum's employee benefits program, including medical and dental.	Late January and varying
